Kevin Turner, senior vice president of Voit Commercial Brokerage's Irvine office, has been awarded the 2009 Man of Character award by the Orange County Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

Turner was presented the award by the Boy Scouts' committee chairman, Ralph Linzmeier, and Manny Montanez, a previous recipient of the Man of Character honor.

The presentation took place during the Cox 3 Sports Game of the Week Pre-Game Show before the Dana Hills versus Mission Viejo football game.

The Man of Character Award is bestowed on eight individuals each year. Its recipients are selected by the Orange County Council of the Boy Scouts of America following a countywide search. The men are chosen because of their profound influence on the community and for demonstrating the values that the Boy Scouts strive to develop in young men.

Turner, a resident of Coto de Caza, received this award as recognition of his active involvement in several community charities including his recent role as a board member for Education for the Children. Turner has also been involved with CoxCares Teacher of the Week, Pop Warner Football and R.S.M. Little League Baseball.

As senior vice president for Voit Commercial Brokerage's Irvine office, Turner is one of Orange County's leading commercial real estate brokers and has represented several Fortune 500 companies both nationally and locally.

Although never a Boy Scout himself, all of Turner's three children have gone through the Boy Scout and Girl Scout programs.
